AT ITS MEETING LAST NIGHT IT COMES OUT FOR THE SANITARY LEAGUE AND SEEKS AN IM-PROV. MENT IN THE CONDITION OF THE CITY-

The East Washington Citizens' Association wheeled into line at its regular monthly meeting last night and heartily indorsed the Sanitary League. In fact, the entire evening, with the exception of a few minutes, was devoted to a discussion of its needs and the benefits to be derived therefrom. The discussion opened with the consideration of the following resolution offered by Chairman Hendley of the committee on health, police and charities: An act to authorize the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to make and enforce regulations relative to the sale of coal and also milding regulations.

Be it enacted, &c., That the Commissioners enforce such regulations relative to the sale of coal in the District of Columbia as shall insure full weight to purchasers of coal.

Sec. 2. That such rules and regulations made as above provided shall have the same force and effect within the District of Columbia as if macted by Congress, Approved June 14, 1878.

Troubles in Brazil. The Brazilian legation in this city has reseived a telegram from the foreign office in Rio Janeiro relating to the troubles in Rio Grande do Sul. The telegram stated that reports of serious engagements between the revolutionists and the government forces, printed in the United States and European press, were exaggerated, for the reason that the revolutionists avoided coming in conflict with the troops. The affair at Alegrete, the telegram stated, at which it was made to appear that the revolutionists were signally successful, was a conflict between a body of patriotic citizens without equipment or organization and a portion of the revolu-tionary forces. In one battle that has occurred, according to the telegram, there were but fifty soldiers of the twenty-eighth regiment engaged and they gained a decisive victory. The tele-gram closes with the assurance that the army is entirely loyal, that no desertions have occurred, and that every order has been obediently ex-ecuted.

Although the mystery of the death of Frank Bowie in Prince George's county had been solved, confirmation of the universal belief has been obtained in the confession of the murderers. He and Pinkney returned at 9 o'clock that night, wrapped up the body in a sack and started to carry it to a well, which has not been used for years, on the farm of Mr. Benj. H. C. Bowie.

Pinkney first took up the body and carried it on his back until he became so nauseated that he had to stop. Then Barber took up the body, but refused to carry it to the place for which they first started, as it was about a mile from the scene of the murder. They then threw the body in the well on the farm of Mr.

They had planned to murder Mr. Bowie some time before. One plot was to waylay him on the road, cut loose his horse, break up the buggy and leave the occupant lying beside it, o that it might appear that he was killed ac-

The Approaching Solar Eclipse.

From Nature.

The total solar eclipse of April 15-16, 1893, is not only one of the longest of the century, but it is the last of the century from which we are likely to get any additions to our knowledge of soiar physics. The longest duration of totality of this eclipse is four minutes forty-six seconds, and as the path of the moon's shadow lies to a great extent on land there is a considerable choice of possible stations with long durations of totality. Two expeditions will be sent from Engiand, one to Africa, the other to Brazil, the expenses being defrayed by the Royal Society. The United States will send an expedition to Chile and there will probably be two or three American parties at Pasa Cura. A Brazilian party will also observe. The Bureau des Longitudes, Paris, is sending a complete expedition to Joal, in Africa. Mr. Gladstone's Speech in Moving Its Sec-

In the house of commons yesterday afternoon after THE STAR's report closed Mr. Gladstone said that the progress of events in the JOB" WITH A LOCUST STICK-THEY DID NOT past century had proved the fallacy of the argament offered by the opponents of home rule that time and patience would see Ireland pacified without special legislation. Never was there a time when the Irish people were so near to acceptance of the union as during the first twenty-nine years after the act of the union had been passed, and the reason was not because they loved it, but because they were trodden under foot. They wished for peace and

As soon as the voice of Ireland was heard in parliament the constitutional movement for self-government commenced, and it had never ceased, and would continue until self-government should be granted. "Let the house," Mr. Gladstone continued, "look at the spectacle the world offers in regard to its unions. In the civilization world are incorporated union. the civilized world no incorporated union effected and maintained by force has ever pros pered. That is a challenge of some boldness is it too bold?" Here the Right Hon, Sir Michael Hicks-

Beach, conservative M. P. for West Bristol, in-terrupted Mr. Gladstone with the remark, "Take the case of the United States." "I said incorporated union," said Mr. Glad-stone. "You missed the essential word." SUCCESS IN SELF-GOVERNMENT.

"Holland and Belgium tried incorporated union, and after a precarious existence of fifteen years a divorce was effected. Austria and Hungary tried incorporation, and after years of sad experience they found the choice lay in giving it up or the empire. Russia incorporated Poland. Take your stand thereon if you think fit. Let the opposition make it the model of their operations.

"To all unions but one principle can be applied, and that is whether they require permanent maintenance by force. If, when the force disappears, harmony remains, the union is good. If the maintenance of the union by force actual or in reserve is necessary the value of the union is questionable.

"Unions not incorporated but autonomous have been attended in all cases with success, sometimes complete and always considerable. Thus Austria and Hungary under their present union. Norway and Sweden, Denmark and Iceland, Russia and Finland are illustrations. The most complete success was the German federation, where each state had its own powers, the union only affecting imperial interests. In the United States each state had its own rights, and any one in America daring to interfere with those rights would be regarded as a madman. The colonies had some points in common with Ireland. The disease of dis-affection once permeated them, but a remedy was found in self-government." THE FINANCIAL QUESTION.

In conclusion Mr. Gladstone referred to the retention of the Irish members in the imperial parliament. During the last sixty years, he resolutions upon the matter substantially the said, twelve instances had occurred of cabinets being displaced by a vote of censure. Among these instances there was not a case where the question at issue was purely British, eight having been imperial and four Irish questions Therefore, he thought less inconvenience ought to be expected from Irish members voting on British questions than had been anticipated. Regarding the question of finance, Mr. Glad-stone admitted that it was no easy matter to disentangle the finances of countries associated The resolutions indersed the action of the Baltimore Methodist Episcopal conference in in any way free from inconvenience, but the opposing the Faribault scheme and said: "The trouble was mere dust in the balance compared Roman Catholic Church has already taken ac-

MIR KHUDADAD HEAVILY FINED. He Was Guilty of Atrocities Toward His Suspected Wives. Further information in regard to the atrocities committed by Mir Khudadad Khan, the ruler of Khelat, India, is to the effect that, having suspected five of his numerous wives to be guilty of infidelity, he caused them to be cruelly put to death.

In answer to the demand of the British Indian government that the khan should liberate his surviving prisoners and should give an explanation of his course, the khan has agreed to deliver up the prisoners to the British agent.

The cruelties of which the khan had been guilty appearing indefensible the British agent has imposed upon the khan a fine of 40,000 rupees, the money to be devoted to the benefit of the families of those who have been unjustly executed. This will mean a reduction of the annual subsidy paid to the khan by the British government from 100,000 rupees to 60,000 rupees for the year. The Khan of Khelet, who is himself at the head of a confederacy of chiefs, is amenable to the advice of the agent to the governor general in Bealsochistan, who arbitrates in matters between the khan and his subordinates. The conduct of the khan is all the more surprising, for the reason that he is about fifty-two years of age and has been on the throne since 1857 and has heretofore been generally well behaved. merous wives to be guilty of infidelity, he

For instance, four reports made by Capt. Hooper concerning seal life in the Pribyloff Islands had been incorporated in the counter case, although these were evidence of the kind to which the United States had objected when it came from Great Britain. These reports, like much other similar matter, had been used in the American case without provoking the alightest protest from Great Britain The supplementary report, which Mr. Phelps has asked to have excluded, did not contain any has asked to have excluded, did not contain any new facts, but simply the result of a re-exam-mation of well-known facts. In conclusion Sir Charles Russell urged upon the arbitrators the necessity of determining the question of right before dealing with the regulation of the seal fisheries. The British counsel, he said, would do their utmost to make this course of produre prevail. In opening his address in reply to Sir Charles In opening his address in reply to Sir Charles Russell Mr. J. C. Carter remarked that it was not a custom of the American bar for counsel to introduce his own personality in a case so as to lend weight to his arguments; therefore he himself would not follow the example set several times by counsel for Great Britain. Proceeding then to the question at issue he pointed out that when the United States delegates arrived in Paris the cases as far as argument was rived in Paris the cases, as far as argument was concerned, were finished and both cases and counter cases had long been closed. The United States government, therefore, never imagined that further evidence would be adduced.

The United States government was of the opinion that it had much reason to complain of Great Britain's conduct in the case, but this had been passed over. That, however, after the case had been submitted additional evidence should be brought forward was a contingency which had never been contemplated by the rep-resentatives of the American government. They resentatives of the American government. They admitted that further oral argument might be necessary for the purpose of elucidation, but surprise was the least of the emotions they experienced when the supplementary report was introduced. They believed the only thing to be done was to return these documents, as the time for submitting new evidence was long past. "We would not impute bad faith to the Brit-ish government," said Mr. Carter. "nor charge the British delegates with entering upon this case saying, 'We will teach these Yankees a trick worth knowing.' At the same time we hold that our opponents proceeded upon an errone-ous interpretation of the treaty of arbitration." In reviewing and comparing the speeches of Mr. Phelps and Sir Charles Russell the Paris correspondent of the London Daily News says. "It struck me in listening to Mr. Phelps' pleadings that under the cover of attacks on the treaty of arbitration there was a great deal meant to tell against the party that agreed to it at the White House. Sir Charles Russell argued that this was not a case for sticking closely to legal technicalities, but one for looking into the intentions of those who signed the treaty. Both statements and counter statements, he said, contained a series of depositions which would not be valid either in England or the United States as proofs. All evidence of this sort would be inadmissible if the case had to be decided on purely technical grounds instead of according to the natural laws of equity and international considerations of justice."

Yale men cling to their traditions as to their birthrights. A few days ago a group of seniors gathered near Prof. Goodell's recitation room in the old chapel. There is a fine tar walk in front of the building and it is just the place for top spinning. Prof. Goodell had a class of freshmen inside and was attempting to teach them the first rudiments of Greek composition. Suddenly the seniors because uninging entaids. Now denly the seniors began spinning outside. Now and then a big top crashed through a window and fell buzzing into the recitation room, to the great glee of the freshmen, but greatly to the annoyance of Prof. Goodell. The seniors were apparently much amused at the mishaps, and shouts of "Do it again!" came from men looking on from various open windows near by.

After a choice assortment of tops had fallen After a choice assortment of tops and tailed into the recitation room and the players seemed to show no signs of being weary of the sport the professor closed his books and went outside. He told the seniors that he had stood the strict the seniors that he had stood the strict the seniors that he had stood the seniors that he had stood side. He teld the seniors that he had stood the noise as long as he could and ordered them to disperse. The men replied that they had a perfect right to spin tops on the public sidewalk and declined to be dispersed.

Thereupon Prof. Goodell took out his note book, and, being unacquainted with all in the group, asked their names. There were several Hoke Smiths present, one Dink Botts, a John Quincy Adams and other well-known public men. Prof. Goodell was furious at the outcome of his sortie and returned to the freshmen.

The seniors gave him a cheer and retired to another part of the campus to continue their sport. All were indignant at his effort to put a stop to their games, but most of them we for several days in expectancy of receiving notes from the dean. When seen at his house, this afternoon, Prof. Goodell acknowledged that he had tried to put a stop to the top spinning. "I don't object to it on principle," he said, "but I do want quiet in the neighborhood of my recitation rooms. These seniors do nothing all day but spin tops. The buzzing is continually going on somewher on the campus. The seniors are in one respect like Solomon's lilies of the field. They toil not, but they certainly do spin. Of course I knew that they gave me fictitious names when I took out my note book the other day. They thought I was going to report them to the dean, but I did nothing of the kind. I only wanted to frighten them. These young men are all friends of mine. I had them in my class when they that they gave me fictitious names when I took

The seniors do not seem to agree with Prof. Goodell about the friendship he says exists be tween them. They feet sore about the attempt to interfere with their sports and the genera produced a boom in tops.

Some one told him he was not casting hard enough, and Van Huyck, as a member of last rough, and van Huyck, as a member of last year's victorious 'varsity crew, resented this comment on his muscular power. He wound the top carefully and prepared for a desperate effort. It was rewarded with an unexpected result. The string was so tightly wound that the top was jerked upward by the throw and returned to strike the young man in the face.

The iron spike shattered his eveglasses and drove the fragments into his left eye, which began to bleed profusely. His classmates hastily put him into a cab, when they realized the serious nature of the accident, and hustled him over to the office of Dr. W. H. Ring on Elm street. The doctor found that the small pieces of glass had pierced the eyelid in several places and that many smaller fragments had lodged in the layers of the corner. This was badly lacerated, as was also the sciera. Dr. Ring said today that he was very much pleased with the progress made by his patient. The accident occurred on Monday and the lacerations are now almost entirely healed. The doctor further says that if his patient keeps on progressing as well as he has he will be able to resume his studies in about three weeks. M. Dupuy, the new premier, read a statement of his policy in the French chamber of deputies yesterday.

He said: "The government is constious of the difficulties of the present situation, but feels confidence in view of the profound tranquility prevailing in the country, and its abidphysical condition to withstand the present strain on his constitution.

----Treasures of Ancient History.

From the London Tablet.

The contents of that wonderful treasury of antique records discovered in 1887 by a peasant woman near the ruins of the ancient Arsinoe in upper Egypt have now been laid before the public in Major Conder's work on the Tel Amarna Tablets, comprising a translation of the text, with introduction and notes. Inscribed on clay tablets, subsequently baked into brick, and written in Aramaic, the ancient gard for morality and the preservation of self-respect. This lesson has gone home to the national conscience. We may, therefore, regard the future with confidence. Every into brick, and written in Aramaic, the ancient regard the future with confidence. Every day universal suffrage brings democratic inspirations into greater accord with republican institutions, and the day is at hand when the definitive identification of France with the republic will render an agreement easier to establish. The surest means of hastening such a result is that the public administration should act with correctness and with consideration for equity and order to secure the common welfare.
